She went in happy this week this is very new to her so she doesn't like leaving me but always seems to be happy from what I'm told

Full days (9am-3.30pm) have been new to us this year. Have you accessed full days with us?

Answered: 31 Skipped: 1

Amazing... its been such a great thing especially with school September give her the feel of a full school day.

5/16/2022 1:01 PM

Absolutely perfect, our son loves going all day

5/16/2022 9:38 AM

View respondent's answers

Although [REDACTED] does not do a full week full days, still doing the full days she does is a great start to helping her prepare for what full days will be like at school and it will not be such a shock to her which she starts next year. It's brilliant for [REDACTED] as she get more time to learn and explore and play with her friends more and it also helps me as it gives me a little more time to get things done. It also means [REDACTED] isn't doing half days every day so we actually still get a couple of fulls days just me and her while her big sister is still at school.

Works brilliantly for me with work, and also getting used to a school day for September! It also meant that my son could access preschool, otherwise a shirt session would not have worked for us.

Only recently started accessing a full day at [REDACTED] request, but it's been fantastic for us. [REDACTED] loves "lunch day" and it's given me a full day a week to get things done rather than trying to cram everything in to a morning. Timings work really well around the local schools too!

Thinking about our revised dropping off procedure at Nursery. Staff feel that this has benefitted the children, as they have settled more quickly and really developed their independence. We would like to know how you feel about this. Please explain any thoughts and ideas you have around this.

Answered: 32 Skipped: 0

- I find this alot easier.

5/20/2022 4:24 PM View respondent's answers Add tags
- I think it is a much better way of doing things, gives the children more independence and saves the chaos trying to walk through nursery and loosing your child before saying goodbye whilst they hang up their bags ect

5/20/2022 4:02 PM View respondent's answers Add tags
- I think its worked well reduced congestion in the nursery rooms and let's your child have some independence to go in on their own.

5/16/2022 1:01 PM View respondent's answers Add tags
- I totally agree with what you have said in regards to this point.
- It's fine for me, sometimes easier if you aren't hanging around so they become unsettled.

5/16/2022 8:28 AM View respondent's answers Add tags
- I agree my child seemed to settle quicker

5/10/2022 6:13 PM View respondent's answers Add tags
- I think for [REDACTED] who is often reticent about leaving his trusted adults, the clear transition has been very useful and saved lengthening the separation transition!

5/10/2022 4:04 PM View respondent's answers Add tags

It's all we've known, but I think it works well as sets them up for school when they're dropped off outside there.

Yes I preferred this routine as I used to drop off my daughter precovid and found it emotional walking out the door if she was upset.

The only thing I have found hard is I've not met the staff and it made me very anxious but you were kind and made me a laminated book of all the staff which was very kind

Quicker, less disruptive for them I feel and as you state, encourages their independence.

Thinking about your child's language skills and communication now. How has this developed during their time with us?

Answered: 32 Skipped: 0

Her vocab is amazing and she uses her words correctly.

Add tags ▼

Yes, because of the weekly topics you have at nursery and the daily activities she does that are different to what we do at home, we have more talking points and [REDACTED] talks more in conversation as has these things to talk about and she shows expressions and opinions more and it has helped her confidence even with tricky words, being able to say them and have a go.

[REDACTED] didn't start to speak until he was 3, so this last year, he has come on leaps and bounds!

His language has always been very good for his age but I often notice him talking about words that rhyme which I suspect he has picked up from nursery

We've never really had any concerns with [REDACTED] language and communication but her vocabulary is so much broader now!
